An Appeal From the Assassin.

Guiteau has sent to the press the following:

To the American People: Twelve men say I wickedly murdered James A. Garfield. They did it on the false notion that I am a disappointed office-seeker. My speech, they say, made no impression on them. I am not surprised at the verdict, considering their class. They do not pretend to be christian men and therefore did not appreciate the idea of inspiration. They are men of the world, and of moderate intelligence, and therefore are not capable of appreciating the character of my defense. According to one of them, "We had grog at each meal and a cigar afterwards," which showed their style and habits. Men of this kind cannot represent the great Christian Nation of America. Had they been high toned christian gentlemen, their verdict would have been "not guilty," not because of insanity, the mere outward act of shooting would have been the same, whatever motive. If I had been a disappointed office-seeker, which is absolutely false, and proved by my papers and by Mr. Brooks' testimony, on July 2nd and 3rd. The outward act of shooting would have been the same if I had been directed by the Diety to do it, or believed myself as directed to do it, which is the literal truth as I prove by all my papers and talk on the subject. This jury had not sufficient intelligence to see that point, and entirely ignored the political necessity for the act, which all christian and intelligent people see. For this reason I am entitled to a new trial, if, for no other, and we have a prodigious amount of exceptions. I want to employ two or three first-class lawyers to take charge of my case. The principal point to be shown is the non-jurisdiction of this court, to try this indictment, because the president died in New Jersey. Authorities on this point are conflicting, but some of the best lawyers in America say the predominance of authorities are against the jurisdiction of this court in banc to pass upon this question, and have no doubt but that the high toned christian gentlemen representing the Washington court in banc will give it their most careful attention to the end that if the Diety intended to protect from legal liability herein by allowing the president to depart gracefully and peacefully in New Jersey, I shall have the benefit of the Diety's intention. I consider it especially providential in my favor, and ask the court in banc to so consider.

I have received some checks, but many of them have proved worthless, which shows the low character of the men that send them. I need money to employ counsel. There are many people in America that believe in God, and in my inspiration, and that I am a patriot.

To you, men and women of America, I appeal. I ask you in the name of justice to come speedily to my relief. Come in person or by letter. If you send money, send a postal order or check to my order. With competent legal help I can get out of this with the Lord's help, and I am sure of this. But good lawyers do not work for nothing. I want to employ two or three first-class lawyers to do my work before the court in banc. If I had had competent counsel I should not have talked so much in court. But I disagree with the theory of Mr. Scoville and Reed, and it has made it unpleasant for both parties, and has been great damage to my defense. Judge Porter says I am right and I agree with him, although I know he has abused and vilified me outrageously when I had no alternative save to answer back, which I did in my usual plain way. I have been convicted, but the verdict can not be enforced until July, in any event, and probably not until September. I give myself no anxiety on account of the verdict. I hardly expected acquittal. The most I expected was disagreement then I proposed to test the question of jurisdiction in court in banc. It is a purely legal question, and if the opinion of some of the best lawyers at the American bar it is sustained by banc, it will end the case. I can't get a hearing on this in April.

I make a special appeal to the ladies of America to come to my rescue. Some of them have written me delightful letters, and I ask each and every one of them to respond to the extent of their means, and see me in person, if possible. I return my sincere thanks for their letters and sympathies. You ladies believe in God, and in my inspiration, and that I have really saved the Nation great trouble, and great trouble and great expense, to-wit: Another war. Last spring General Garfield had the Republican party in a frightful condition, and it was getting worse every hour. To-day everybody of sense is satisfied with General Arthur's administration, and the country is happy and prosperous. Only good has come from General Garfield's removal, which is conclusive evidence that it was inspiration from the Deity. He has repeatedly confirmed, my act since July 21. Therefore, let all persons quietly acquiesce in the expressed will of the Deity. I am God's man in this matter, just as truly as the "despised Galilean" was God's man. They said he was a blasphemer, glutton, &c., and seemed a small thing for his acquaintances to kill, but his death stirred the wrath of the Almighty, but he got even with them forty years later at the destruction of Jerusalem, A. D. 70, and he will get even with the American people if a hair of my head is harmed. God will vindicate me even if the Nation rolls in blood, mere physical death is nothing to me. Under the law I can not be executed in any event until July. I may die a dozen times before then; also I have no trouble about that. I shall not go before my time. I had rather be hung, as far as physical death is concerned, than die from painful illness, or meet with a railroad or steamboat accident. I hardly think I am destined to be hung, and therefore give myself no thought on that, but I am anxious to have my character and inspiration vindicated. To that end I need help, as herein mentioned. My friends need not be ashamed of me. Some people think me the greatest man of this age, and that my name will go down to history as a patriot by the side of Washington and Grant.

CHARLES J. GUITEAU.

WHEN a man makes his will he is preparing for a dead give away.

"Oh, yes," said the broker; "oh, yes, he's sharp; he's very sharp. But then he's like most sharp men, he never cuts anything unless it's better than him-self."

ISQUARE: No; maybe brass can't be turned into gold, but it comes pretty close to it when a boot and shoe drummer gets $2,000 a year salary.—Boston Post.

AN Irishman wrote thus to his wife of a sick brother: "If Jamie isn't dead yet, remind him of the twenty shillings he owes me on the pigs, and if he is, tell him not to give himself any countenance about it."

"Oh, mamma, that's Capt. Jones' knock! I know he has come back to ask me to be his wife." "Well, my dear, you must accept him." "But I thought you hated him so!" "Hate him? I do—so much that I mean to be his mother-in-law!"

NOT YET IN SEINE.

"Ocean me not," the lover cried,
"I am your surr—to you I'm tied;
Don't breaker heart, fair one, but wave
Objections thine—this surr I crave."
"Oh blow Bill," she blushed, "I see
You would beach-osen shore by me,
But I'm mermaid not yet in seine,
And shell for years that way remain."

"THERE, you little guns, go to school," said a mother to her children as she finished combing their hair. "Why do you call them guns?" said a visiting aunt to the mother. "Why, because they always go off with a bang."

LATEST FROM CATLETTSBURG.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS IN THE CASE OF ELLIS CRAFT.

Mrs. Ellis and the Mother of the Murdered Emma Thomas on the Witness Stand.

Special to the DAILY BULLETIN.

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., Jan. 28, 1882.—The trial of Ellis Craft is still going on in the circuit court. The much-sympathized-with Mrs. Ellis was again on the witness stand this morning and in her testimony substantially corroborated the statements made by George Ellis, her husband.

Mrs. Thomas, the mother of the murdered Emma Thomas, was also examined and gave testimony that is considered to be very damaging to Craft. The court room is still crowded and the interest in the trial seems to be unabated.

The friends of ex-United States Marshal Pitkin, of Louisiana, say he will be appointed Minister to Mexico.

SENATOR Williams, of Kentucky, has prepared an elaborate speech upon the tariff in favor of revenue reform, which he will deliver at an early day.

The majority of the Iowa delegation in congress are of the opinion that secretary Kirkwood will be retained in his present position during Arthur's term.

The house bill for the benefit of Mr. C. G. Cady, of this city, has passed the Senate. The bill appropriates $198.50, the amount expended by Mr. Cady for transportation and supplies for the State Guards, paid for by him.

The Legislature Committee on Sanitary Regulations, has reported a bill amending the existing laws relating to small-pox so as to make it the duty of the local boards of health to more fully enforce them. It is a good law and ought to pass.

Says the American Register: The present Republican party is a revolutionary party. Trampling down the Constitution and the most sacred compacts of the union of the states, it brought upon the country the great civil war, in which over a million of human beings lost their lives, over ten thousand millions of dollars worth of property was sacrificed, and mourning and suffering indescribable were brought upon the land. And in order to enable this party to rule the country after the war was over it changed in many respects the Constitution, before the Southern States were allowed a representation in congress, and also established over those states an absolute military despotism. And because the people of the south would not prostrate themselves before this party, but maintained a solid south against it, the leaders are now laboring to create a party in the south on a nefarious scheme of repudiation of state indebtedness.

The Constitution of the United States provides, that "No state shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts." (Art. I, Sec. 10.) Yet, in shameless disregard of this provision of the constitution the republican party is engaged in the business of building up a party in the south on a scheme of the repudiation of state debts. If this succeeds, how long will it be before a party spring up in favor of the repudiation of the debt of the Federal Government? When the lion got the taste of the blood, it is said, he became wholly uncontrollable. Break down the principle of integrity founded in the Constitution, and where will such degradation end?

THE DAY CASE.

The Prisoner Convicted and Sentenced to the Penitentiary for two Years.

In the circuit court, Friday, the 27th inst., Frank Day was tried for feloniously breaking in the storehouse of W. D. Frazee, of Dover, sometime last November. The case had been continued for several days on account of the absence of detective Charles Wappenstein and officer Crawford, of Cincinnati, two very material witnesses for the prosecution. They arrived in the city Thursday night, and the case came up for trial Friday morning. The prosecution proved that the detectives alluded to above arrested Day on suspicion at his boarding house in Cincinnati, shortly after Frazee's store was robbed; that after he had been lodged in the station house they searched his room and found a valise containing several silk handkerchiefs, two pair of gloves and other articles of merchandise. The goods were identified by Frazee as those that had been stolen from his store. The valise was identified by the wharf master of Dover as his property. Three witnesses swore that they saw a man resembling Day on the road leading from Dover to the Ripley ferry, early on the morning after the store was broken into and that he carried a valise resembling the one found in Day's room at Cincinnati.

The defense introduced five or six witnesses, all from Cincinnati, who swore that Day was employed by the same establishment in which they worked, and that he was at this establishment on the night Frazee's store was robbed. They were positive of this fact, but on being cross-examined they all acknowledged that they were employed at Ryan's beer garden, a house that does not enjoy the best of reputation in that city. Several of them also acknowledged that they had served terms in the Cincinnati work house having been convicted of different offenses in the police court of that city. It was also proved that Ryan was "footing" their bills while here as witnesses for Day. The prosecution then proved that Day's witnesses were overheard at the Schatzmann House since their arrival here "comparing notes" and fixing upon the time during which they would all swear that Day was at his place of work in Cincinnati. It was also proved that Day made a proposition to Wappenstein and Crawford shortly after his arrest to "blow on his two partners in the job" if they (the detectives) would let him off. The jury were not very long in bringing in a verdict of guilty. His punishment was fixed at confinement in the penitentiary for two years.

The Yeoman is of the opinion that the Legislature ought to pass a bill providing for the examination of teachers of public schools in those particular studies they design to teach, and thinks the law oppressive that compels teachers to display a knowledge of many things in order to teach a few. On this subject it says. A teacher fitted to take charge of a particular grade in a common school is not allowed to do so unless he or she shows an ability to teach in all the other grades by producing a certificate. One or two of the best teachers have left the public school of this city, because they would not or could not pass the annual examination required by the board, which comprehended a knowledge of the studies in all the grades.

BATCHELDER'S

Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by nesters at end of case, as seen in cut. These trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fitters complete - 65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 18 doz. Case with Fitters complete, - 55 Cents.

15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 string 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $2.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.

The 18 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, without nailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,

Indices of Character.

There are certain wisecracks who affect an ability to detect some of the strong characteristics of individuals from their handwriting, or from some other equally trifling exhibition of peculiarity. It may be their walk, the poise of their head, the swing of the arms, or the tone of the voice—there are some willing to affirm that with knowledge of one of these they need nothing more to form a trustworthy judgment of the man or woman.

Within certain very narrow limits, something may be accurately predicted of these small things; and the term—characteristics—which is so loosely and broadly applied to all outward manifestations of personality, shows how thoroughly this idea has been woven into the fabric of our speech. Yet, beyond the very narrow limits, speculation upon character from the small idiosyncrasies is the merest guesswork, and is quite as frequently and as widely erroneous as guesswork respecting anything else.

The handwriting of a man is partly due to his early training and partly to his occupation. A boy who has not shown any special taste for penmanship at school will, if subsequently placed in a position where much and careful writing is required of him, develop great facility, and much more elegance and precision in the formation of characters than the lad who at school was the "blue ribbon" writer of his class, yet who, by subsequent circumstances, is so placed that he has comparatively little occasion to practice the art.

When one sees a beautiful, bold hand, the presumption is that the writer is engaged in a pursuit which demands a great deal of writing. This would probably be borne out by the facts in a large majority of cases; but, when so borne out, it would afford no clue to the general mental endowment, or the strong traits of the individual. It would not show whether he had or had not any business breadth; whether he was to be trusted or distrusted, or what were his qualifications for any position aside from his ability to write well. The composition would throw some additional light upon the general intelligence of the writer, but even this would not be of much service.

When we take up the category of indifferent or bad writers, the difficulty of forming any intelligent judgment therefrom is vastly increased. It is accepted as a general proposition that lawyers write badly; but there are so many exceptions to this that no relationship between the legal profession and any special form of handwriting can be traced.

Some of the most learned and methodical and eloquent lawyers write execrably, while others, who stand at the very summit of the profession, write with graceful outline. Some artists, whose creations have a world-wide fame, scrawl their names, while others of eminence take apparent pride in a signature which betokens a nice hand with a deft stroke.

It is undoubtedly true that the aggregate of little things which men do make up the sum of their personality. When one person is familiar with the general demeanor of another, knows the daily goings out and comings in, there is a good basis for an estimate of character, yet even such an estimate is likely to be partial or prejudiced.

An involuntary estimate is formed from the face of a stranger, and as what a man's life has been in a great degree impressed upon his features, the intuitive reckoning is often sound. Yet it is almost as often misleading. Forbidding-looking men frequently have rare sweetness of temper and charms of mind and heart, while men who were the embodiment apparently of manly beauty have been as cold, unconscionable villains as ever drew breath.

It is a safe rule never to permit the feelings to run away with the judgment in weighing character from slight surface indications. No man or woman is entitled to the confidence and trust of another until tried and proved; nor should any fellow-being be condemned unheard because his face is "against him," unless the disqualification is stamped so emphatically that there can be no mistaking the brand.—Detroit Free Press.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK 1882.

The Sun for 1882, will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The Sun's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

The Sun of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun.

It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

The Sun of 1882, will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and interesting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of the Sun's political course.

The Weekly Sun gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of the unequalled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like the Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Goldmine of interesting literature, with the poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and in infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for the Sun.

Our terms are as follows.

For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year, or including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.50 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of the Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
